the Quilna theatre with Chester Morris, Ralph Bellamy and Ana Dvorak in featured roles, for the first time on the screen smashes its way thru the iomance and glamour which has hitherte been associated with crime to reveal, in all its sensational ruthlessness, the warped facets of a murderous mind.

"Blind Alley," based upon the successful Broadway stage play by James Warwick, is a thrilling phychological story of a gunman. In external action, the film traces the course of Hal Wilson after his escape from the penitentiary, lakeside home where he terror. izes the inhabitants and their safety.

In marked contrast to the phys-ical action of "Blind Alley" is the dramatic uncovering of the killer's mind . . , the slow and careful process of psycho-analytic examination which he undergoes at the hands o. his unwilling host, a protessor of psychology. The profossor, calmest person in the household, slowy breaks thru the bravado of the killer, reveals him as a biutal coward, and then carues him back to his childhood, to the memories which haunt him and make him behave as he does.

HARDIN SELLS RELIEF NOTES

(fina News Bureau) KENTON, Aug. 8-Poor relief notes with a value of $18,000 were sold by the Hardin-co board of commissioners here Monday to the Ryan, Sutherland & Co., a bonding concern of Toledo. The bid was $18,003 and only one per cent interest was charged. Interest will be paid on the first day of each April and October and thereon until the principal is fully repaid. The relief notes are not subject to county taxation, Hardin-co Auditor W. B. Wilson pointed out. They are paid off by public utility tax funds received by the state and then apportioned to the counties, Wilson stated.
