

"Diamond Jim Brady" Starts At Lyric Theatre Tuesday

Edward Arnold Starred In Story Of Incredible Character Of Broadway In The Gay Nineties

Commencing Tuesday at the Lyric theatre is "Diamond Jim Brady," starring Edward Arnold. It is the story of the incredible character of Broadway in the gay Nineties with Arnold's remarkable physical resemblance to the man adding to enjoyment of the picture. Co-featured will be "Wings Over Honolulu," an air thriller. Showing for the last times Monday are "Shadows of the Sage" and "Girl From Alabama."

Laying his opponents flat with his devastating attack, Errol Flynn as Jim Corbett, punches his way to the heavyweight crown in the current Ohio film, "Gentleman Jim." Alexis Smith, not an opponent, heads the supporting cast, which includes such stellar performers as Jack Carson, Alan Hale, John Loder, William Frawley, Minor Watson, Ward Bond and Madeleine LeBeau. Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair are the stars of the current Quilna theatre film, "My Sister Eileen." It all starts when the two girls leave Columbus, O., for a career in New York. There they lease a Greenwich Village basement, where strangers stroll thru at all hours. Doors have no locks, a new subway is being blasted below and neighbors drop in to sleep over.

William Powell returns to familiar ground in "Crossroads," the story of blackmail and intrigue now showing at the State theatre. Others in the cast are Hedy Lamarr, Claire Trevor and Basil Rathbone. Also on the screen is "Juke Box Jenny," starring Ken Murray, Harriet Hilliard and Don Douglas in a musical tale of a girl with a sweet voice but who aspired to be famous in the wrong field.

Jeff Donnell, whose given name could fit a boy as well as a girl, easily qualifies as the most original personality among the younger players competing for recognition on the screen. Jeff, who has a turned up nose, twinkling eyes and a breathless eagerness for fun or work, insists that she isn't pretty. Yet her vitality and warm friendliness have made her reigning belle of her set.

Already hailed as a promising young comedy find, the brown-haired newcomer is making her film bow at the Quilna theatre in the movie version of the stage hit, "My Sister Eileen," starring Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair.

Miss Donnell was born in a boys' reformatory at South-Whitman, Maine (while her father was superintendent there) and educated at the Maryland Training School for Boys at Towson, Maryland.

Eventually she put on dresses like any young lady to study at the Leland Power Dramatic School, Boston, and the Yale School of Drama, where she finished in 1940. She has a long list of little theatre plays to her credit, and also work in summer stock. Plays Miss Donnell liked best were "Lady of Letters," "The Little Foxes," "Springtime for Henry," and "Nothing But the Truth." Producer Max Gordon and Columbia casting director Max Arnow saw her performance at the Farragut

OHIO

"The King of the hide-beaters," the "Idol of the Alligators," the best drummer in the world, none other than Gene Krupa and his world-famous orchestra, will appear at the Ohio theatre thru the auspices of Music Corp. of America.

Music beyond the ken of Bach, drumbeats to make Africans goggle with envy, rhythm that would send Puritans into a frenzy, are the reasons why the "Jitterbugs" in town, everyone for that matter, are going around with a wild expectant look on their faces.

Krupa will be remembered as the drummer who was such a sensation with Benny Goodman, and who left Benny to start his own band. Riding high on the wave of popularity, his network broadcasts from the Hotel Pennsylvania, Meadowbrook, Glen Island Casino and Hotel Sherman. Okay recordings and his performance in "Some Like It Hot," in which he starred with Bob Hope and Shirley Ross, have entrenched him more firmly than ever in the hearts of the nation's dancers.

Known as the "King of hide-beaters," he has been selected on every All-American swing orchestra, including the recent "best" team by Paul Whiteman. His orchestra features "Tunes of the Times," and their dance rhythms are conceded to be among the finest in the present day music world.

Book Reviews

BY MARY L. ECKFORD
SABOTAGE; THE SECRET WAR AGAINST AMERICA. By Michael Sayers and Albert E. Kahn. Harper and Brothers, $2.00.
This is the book that Walter Winchell recommended so enthusiastically in a recent radio broadcast. It uncovers sensational evidence of the techniques and plans of Axis saboteurs operating in the United States.

The authors not only expose the menace and extent of physical sabotage, but they also present for the first time the full story of how the Axis has devised and is using an entirely new weapon—psychological sabotage. The book reveals how shins are sabotaged, who the "brains" are behind the network, how saboteurs get paid, etc.

DACEY HAMILTON. By Dorothy Van Doren. Harper and Brothers, $2.50.
Dacey Hamilton, widow of a famous painter, and still very young, takes a job on a liberal newspaper. In getting the job she meets a newspaper man. The story traces the gradual awakening of love between the two.

The chief excellence of the novel is its fine portraiture. The dead husband, artist first and human being second, is vividly presented; the five children are lovable and real. It is the kind of story you begin reading with interest and end with a sigh of satisfaction.

GET THEE BEHIND ME: My life as a preacher's son. By Hartzell Spence. McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, $2.75.
The author of "One Foot in Heaven" now executive editor of Yank, the army newspaper, writes of his adolescence in the nineteen-twenties, his upbringing in the Methodist parsonage where Father was Low, but Mother was no meek necessity, and describes vividly the life of the parsonage, and the kind of people it produced.

The children were independent and high-spirited but being minister's children they had a steep and hard path to follow. An anecdotal tale, strangely satisfying.

THE CUP AND THE SWORD. By Alice Tiedale Hohard. Bobbs-Merrill Company, $2.75.
A family chronicle and a picture of wine-growing in America. Old Philippe Rambeau had come from France years before the story opens and had founded and

Ida Lupino And Bryan Aherne Will Star On Radio Theatre

"A Woman's Face" Is Called A Stirring Drama With Psychological Overtones; Alec Templeton On Monday Schedule

Ida Lupino, Brian Aherne and Conrad Veidt will star in "A Woman's Face," a stirring drama with psychological overtones, on the Radio Theatre Monday at 9 p. m. over WABC. For Miss Lupino, it will be another chance to demonstrate for her many fans her remarkable talents as a dramatic actress.

Planiat Alec Templeton, possessing a rare combination of first-rate talent and artistic mind, is an unusual figure in the music world. He is equally at home playing a Chopin or a witty improvisation a la Templeton. Both will be heard on the "Telephone Hour" Monday at 9 p. m. over WEAF.

The program will open with a tribute by Donald Voorhes and the orchestra to the United States 167th anniversary. The tribute consists of the official Marine march, Marine Corps, celebrating its "Semper Paratus," by Sousa, and that rousing song, which, written almost a hundred years ago by an unknown marine, has become immortalized as "The Marine Hymn."

A momentous decision will be in the offing on the "True or False" broadcast Monday at 8:30 p. m. over WJZ, when six college professors will attempt to settle, for all time, which is the more intelligent of the sexes as they oppose six officials of the New Jersey League of Women Voters.

Upon checking her budget, Blondie finds that she has $15 left for the month, so she decides to have a few repairs made on the house during the Blondie program Monday, 7:30 p. m. via WABC. Dagwood thinks it is silly to call in a plumber to fix the furnace, and proceeds to straighten things out himself, thereby saving the $15. When Dagwood gets his head caught in the furnace, they are forced to call the plumber who charges Blondie $5 just to free him. By the time Dagwood has taken the house apart, it costs Blondie twice as much as she planned to spend.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—The War Production Board and the National Housing Agency have reached an agreement by which construction of privately-financed war housing may continue, WPB announced today.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Lima, Ohio, Oct. 29, 1942.

Mr. Hagen, Editor The Lima News, Lima, Ohio.

I am writing this in answer to the many letters written by women who think the drafting of 18 and 19 year old boys would be such a crime.

Why would it be so criminal? Oh yes, they gave some reasons but they wouldn't hold up against much argument.

For instance, everyone of them came thru with "they have not had a voice in the government."

But, how many 20 year olds have had that privilege? None of them has, yet they are old enough to go out and fight.

Then they have the nerve to imply that the men getting married and having children now are doing it to evade the draft. Do they think just because there is a war on that people's emotions and feelings are going to subside for the duration? Why don't we have the right to marry and raise a family. I notice that one woman said she had boys in the service. If they are between 23 and 25 they were born during World War I. Were they born to exempt her husband? I suppose wouldn't have the right to say that they were, yet we who have been married and have children in the last two years are accused of it. Now is that fair? I'll admit that there are probably some men who are guilty of this, but they are the minority.

They go on to say that they can't see why their "babies" have to be drafted away from their mothers. Isn't that a bit silly? How many boys 18 and 19 year olds are there? How many babies? If they are they probably are only in their mother's eye. As far as their mother not wanting them to go, of course they don't. But their mother would not hate to see them go any more than they were 20 or more. No one wants to see any person of any age go off to war.
