I visited at the homes of two of my brothers, and talked with my four nieces and with Jerry, my 13-year-old nephew.

Cosette, an 11-year-old niece, asked me if I would like to see the "pet cemetery" which she and two or three of the neighbor children kept jointly. I told her I should like to see it, and was led to a far corner of the backyard of her home. her home. There I saw a little plot of ground, with a number of small graves. Cosette and Bruce Tone; a neighbor boy known as "Corky," told me about the different pets which had been buried there. These included fish and insects.

Later the children made a list of the pets, and I think you may be interested to hear about them. Among the buried pets are:

A white mouse named Mickey.
