Women Play Conversational

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

D<sup>O</sup> WOMEN play bridge as well D as men? Every time I appear on a radio program the inter-viewer asks me that question. It is my opinion that women get more fun out of bridge than men do. I have seen a foursome of women with one discussing politics, another giving her favorite recipe for chocolate cake, the third talking about her children and the fourth going on about her business and making a terrific play. This happened in a social game

This happened in a social game in Gatlinburg, Tenn., where, by the way, the Smoky Mountain Bridge Tournament will be held Nov. 11, 12 and 13. The king of spades was opened by West. If South had won this trick with the ace and then led a diamond (she has to guess whether to play a diamond or a club) West would no more spades, West shifted to win, return another spade, and to get in with. But South did not to get in with. But South did not be further four-spot from dummy and let West's king hold the trick.
