TIP OF THE MORNING: Singer Mindy Carson is being considered for the role of Miriam in "The Robe," to be filmed by 20th Century-Fox.

WHEN "There Shall Be No Night" opened on Broadway, the top roles were played by a Wisconsin native, Alfred Lunt, and his wife, Lynn Fontanne. When "There Shall Be No Night" is presented on "Best Plays" over NBC-WMAQ at 8 p. m. Friday, the leading parts will be portrayed by a Wisconsin-born actor, Fredric March, and his wife, Florence Eldridge.

Works of five University of Wisconsin students are being shown in two art exhibitions on the campus. In the gallery of the Art Education bldg. are paintings by James Wachholz, graduate student from Milwaukee; graphics and water colors by John Keel, Milwaukee graduate student, and sculpture by Harold LaBue, Madison graduate student. In the Memorial Union lounge are paintings and graphics by Phyllis Berg, Madison senior, and Patricia Molm, Cassville senior.

Melvyn Douglas, currently starring in "Time Out for Ginger" on Broadway, says he doesn't know anything about Lili St. Cyr's plan to produce a play with Douglas and Franchot Tone as her leading men. "I will say, however," Douglas told the United Press, "that I have heard of Miss St. Cyr and that I have always had a hope to work in burlesque sometimes. Perhaps that could be arranged."

Jack Benny is one of the few comedians who doesn't find television a man-killing job. The Associated Press quotes him: "Frankly, I'd sooner be on once a week than once a month. I'm not the least bit nervous in front of the TV cameras. Of course, I am the only comedian who is still nervous about radio."

TODAY'S LAUGH: From James Cunningham's "Asides and Interludes" in Motion Picture Daily... When University Pictures' Phil Gerard called the Moskowitz and Lupowitz restaurant to make a reservation for a trade press dinner prior to a screening, Phil said, after specifying the requirements and identifying the company: "We prefer to be billed." "We," said the management of M. and L., "prefer to paid."

COMPETITION: The Waukesha Symphony orchestra has announced details of its annual contest for young pianists, whose winner will be soloist with the orchestra in a subscription concert during the 1953-54 season.

The contest will be open to all Wisconsin residents and students in Wisconsin schools who are between the ages of 18 and 30, inclusive.

Auditions will be held Apr. 26 in the Carroll College auditorium. Judges will be Prof. Leo Steffens, University of Wisconsin; E. G. Manley, Wisconsin College of Music, Milwaukee; and Prof. Lewis Whitehart, Carroll college, Waukesha.

You can get entry blanks and full information from Mrs. J. H. Chapman, 429 E. Broadway, Waukesha.

Dolores DeCono, Kenosha, won last year's competition. She will appear with the orchestra Mar. 31.

SCREEN FARE: Five outstanding pictures will follow "Stop, You're Killing Me" in the Capitol theater screen. They are "Thunder in the East" (Alan Ladd), "The Jazz Singer" (Danny Thomas and Peggy Lee), "The Stogie" (Martin and Lewis), Walt Disney's "Peter Pan," and Alfred Hitchcock's "I Confess" (Montgomery Clift and Anne Baxter).

DISCS OF THE DAY: Recommended "pop" singles from MGM: Tommy Edwards: "A Fool Such as I," a hit in the country field which, with Tommy's strong delivery, could make the regular lists, and "I Can't Love Another." Billy Eckstine: "Until Eternity," romantic ballad, and "Everything Depends on You." The former sounds like a winner for Eckstine.

Bill Hayes: "How Do You Speak to an Angel" and "The Donkey Song" with chorus and orchestra building up behind the soloist. Good listening.

AT CENTRAL HIGH: A concert, an opera, and two plays are in the making at Central high school building up behind the soloist. The senior high school's annual a melodrama, "Fireman, Save My Child," in an auditorium program Feb. 5. Mrs. Harriet Napleinski is coach. Donna Feggestad and Frances Fiore are co-directors. Miss McCormick will conduct performances of "The Mikado" Mar. 27 and 28. Central junior high school will produce "Meet Corliss Archer." The date has not been announced.
