Storm of Controversy Brews over Jane Russell's New Film
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Jane Russell's latest film "The French Line" will have its premiere showing at the Fox theater here today but a storm of controversy was already brewing over the movie.

Controversial Suit
Fr. Joseph H. Anier, spiritual moderator of the council, said his objection was based on a recent story in the New York Times describing the film and its flouting of industry censorship.
" regard it as a move to break down censorship generally," he said.
This was more or less an answer to a studio spokesman who said that he could not understand why the film was condemned in advance of its showing.
Meanwhile, there was considerable comment on the flamboyant newspaper advertising of the picture. Advance taster ads, appearing for all of last week, merely said: "J. R. on 3 D."
