

Story Of "Bad Eye" Zalutsky Is Set For "Gang Busters"

Col. Schwarzkopf Will Tell How Career Of Fiendish Bandit Was Brought To Close By Police

The story of Bad Eye Zalutsky, bank robber and gunman, who took a fiendish delight in paralyzing his victims with fright by rolling his inhuman left eye until the pupil disappeared from view, will be dramatized on Gang Busters over WABC Saturday.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf and an officer closely associated with the case will trace the bandit's career which culminated in a grim police chase from Allentown, Pa., to Miami, Fla.

Zalutsky had a reform school record, at the age of 18, when he set out to get in the "heavy sugar." He and a pal held up two payroll carriers who were so unnerved by the "evil eye" that they were unable to give police an accurate description of the bandits. A few days later, a bank was robbed by two gunmen in "a car with red wheels." It was this car clue that started a manhunt ending in a pitched battle between the two men and Miami police.

Zalutsky's pal and a detective were killed in the gun battle that occurred in a hotel lobby, but Zalutsky escaped. Zalutsky was known to be without a car, so every taxi driver in Miami was tipped off to watch for him. It was thru this means that police succeeded in trapping the gunman.

A duet with Eddie Miller and Nappy LeMare holding the spotlight will be the feature of the Dixie Song Shop program Saturday, 10:00 p. m. over WAAF, when Miller and LeMare play "Between 18th and 19th on Chestnut Street." Bob Crosby's vocal selection will be the "Singing Hills" and Mildred Bailey's songs will be "The Moon Won't Talk," and "I'll Never Be The Same."

Bob Burns, elder brother of the famous Bob, will make his first radio network appearance as a guest at the National Barn Dance over WJZ Network Saturday, at 9:00 p. m. With his guitar and repertoire of stories, he will join Louise Massey and the Westerners.

Rub, who resembles Bob in face and drawl, gets around. Since graduating from an engineering college, he has been a member of the naval air force, newspaper re-
